oneclick goes UK

Mid-year, oneclick AG from Zurich, Switzerland, started marketing activities in Great Britain for their application delivery and streaming platform to break into the market place – with resounding success. Very quickly, the first software integrators and corporate clients were acquired, who were keen to implement the platform which distribute software applications and data in a browser based desktop. This foundation enabled oneclick to implement one of its strategic initiatives and thus opened a subsidiary in the United Kingdom.

"We believe that the UK is an important base for our expansion into Anglo-American markets", says Dominik Birgelen, CEO of oneclick AG. "Our representation in Great Britain demonstrates to our partners, existing and potential customers that we are personally there for them."

An essential cornerstone for the successful set up was the appointment of the Business Development Director. In Nehal Thakore, oneclick found a first class expert, who will be responsible for new partner acquisition and onboarding of customers in the UK. "I believe it is important to build up sustainable relationships and convince customers, who have a challenging IT starting position, how easy, quick and secure applications and data can be distributed using the oneclick™ platform from any source worldwide to end devices.", Nehal Thakore adds as his personal objective. He has already gained over 15 years of experience implementing many strategic IT infrastructure projects of corporate and public sector clients. Prior to joining oneclick, Nehal Thakore was responsible for projects to create added value through digital transformation in a central department of the government.
