oneclick partners with Qmulus to provide limitless access and secure digital workspaces to businesses

Virtual workspace provider, oneclick AG has today announced its partnership with Qmulus that will enable the Sage solutions provider the ability to offer its customers and Sage Partner network, full access to business applications with any device through one single web portal.

Through the oneclick™ platform, Qmulus customers can bridge the gap between local desktop applications and online device agnostic applications. Users will be able to access their applications from anywhere, on any device whilst having full control of their data. Qmulus provides a range of companies with advice and support, to integrate accounting solutions into their business who often look for a local network application to securely access their data.

Dominik Birgelen, CEO of oneclick, commented on the partnership: "Working with Qmulus and Sage is an exciting progress for oneclick, as our cross-platform compatibility solution is able to connect accountancy businesses with the access to solutions they so desperately require. The partnership is important to oneclick's business growth, allowing us to further implement our solutions to businesses."

Qmulus will be able to quickly deploy any Sage product from on-premise to cloud with the adoption of oneclick™, as well as offering full access to Sage software from any device. Processes such as order taking will be carried out in real-time for Qmulus' customers, from any location, giving businesses the capability to show real time information in front of the customer.

Daniel Lewis Director of Qmulus, said: "With the integration of oneclick™, we can now offer customers the ability to be more agile, both in and out of the office, and extend the life of their existing applications with minimal cost."
