IONOS cloud and oneclick enter technology partnership

The European cloud alternative IONOS cloud and oneclick, vendor of a platform for the provision of digital workspaces, have agreed on a close technology partnership. Customers of IONOS cloud and oneclick can now access a turnkey infrastructure of virtual desktops (VDI) from a 100% GDPR compliant cloud.

With a virtual desktop, users can access pre-configured applications or store files from any end device via the browser and thus work remotely via high-performance streaming without a VPN connection.

oneclick™ interfaces with the IONOS cloud Compute Engine and provides comprehensive automation tools and a management, delivery and security layer for ready-to-use VDI environments.

Remote Desktop for sensitive applications

Christian Petschik, Chief Sales Officer of oneclick: "Especially for sensitive company applications and data, it is important for our customers to be able to use a European cloud solution. With IONOS cloud we have found a partner who offers us exactly that: High performance and fast scalability with 100% GDPR compliance".

Using the oneclick™ platform, users can read existing environments from the IONOS Compute Engine, create networks without specialist knowledge and create and manage new remote desktops. Customers can also implement hybrid workplace concepts in which certain applications are operated in the IONOS Compute Engine while other applications and data remain locally in the customer's own data centre.
